ABOUT

A curious antique Chinese gilt wood wall panel highly reticulated and very detailed. The panel seems to be sectioned by the level of society at the time (Late Qing). The upper section details a three dimensional scene of a scholar or wealthy overlord within a temple or palace with his attendants. Note the detailing on the temple roof/arches and pedestal with incense burner to his left, a servant bearing fruit to the right. Underneath this is a mounted warrior and attendants/flag bearers, whilst on the lower level - paddy field workers and farmers being watched over by the deity Guan Yin / Quanyin - the Goddess of Mercy.

The deep three dimensional effect is quite stunning. If this sculpture is lit correctly it will look quite beautiful. The way one can interpret the scenes and levels of society within - we leave it up to you as the options are many. Listed by East2West Furniture. less
